STAY INFORMED,
EXERCISE YOUR RIGHT,
GET INVOLVED

Being informed about a recent book you've read or heard about that has been challenged is very crucial to fighting censorship. You need to support your librarian and free and open library materials. Figure out what the policy is for reviewing challenged materials and fight against the challengers reasoning. Also, you need to be up to date with today's society and how it works. Through the years many situations have become more popular in the world. We can't keep that out of our libraries because someone doesn't want their child reading it. We have to inform the people and community about these things because they do happen in real life, they aren't just things you see in the news. Staying informed about the challenged books can only help readers, not hurt them.

One way to fight against the censorship of books is by exercising our right to read. We can go to the library and pick out one of many books that had been challenged throughout the years. By doing this we can also tell other people and get them to also read the books which helps them exercise their right to read as well. Even something as small as reading a book can help to fight censorship and protect our right to read anything we want.

People should get involved in stopping censorship and protect our right to read and speak. Anybody can do that by going to school board meetings, making petitions, or protesting. If we don't have the right to read, write, or say what we want then people would be less knowing of the world around them and certain issues. Think about it, wouldn't it be great to be a part of the group that helped save your favorite book? Wouldn't it be great to read what you want, when you want, where you want? This could only happen with help of the community to fight agent's censorship.
